IT IS IMPORTANT TO HARVEST RIPE TOBACCO

If you harvest immature flue-cured tobacco you're taking dollars out of your own pocket.
G. R. Mathews, associate agronomist at VPI, says ripe or mature tobacco is what the industry wants —and the industry will pay accordingly.
Other advantages: Ripe tobacco is easier to cure and grade; if you harvest only ripe tobacco you will have less 'slick tobacco," less green tobacco, and fewer "blue butts."
When priming tobacco watch for the following leaf characteristics in the field: Ripe leaves have lost some of their green color and have taken on a yellow cast; they have begun to "grain-up" and often show a light speckling; they are somewhat less gummy, they are also indicated by a change from green to a yellow cast at the base of the leaf. Immature leaves are green in color, gummy and sticky, and the base of the leaf is still green although there may be a slight burn at the tip. Don't use the condition of the tip as the only indication of ripeness.
Remember, when you are using color as an indication of ripeness that certain varieties like Virginia Gold and D. J. 101 grow with a yellow cast. Often Virginia Gold and 101 leaves should be allowed to burn slightly at the tips before harvesting.
Generally you can't wait for the bottom leaves to get thoroughly ripe because they are thin and will burn readily. Although you harvest these leaves when they are slightly immature, they will generally carry a good color when cured, and there will be fewer dead and chaffy leaves.

INSECT SURVEY WORK REPORTED

Farmers in Virginia continue the battle against bugs.
In his weekly report on insect activities in Virginia, Arthur P. Morris, associate entomologist at VPI, says alfalfa and clover fields are frequent victims. Leaf hoppers and lygus bugs are beginning to cause yellowing of alfalfa in some localities. The leaf hoppers and grasshoppers are in alfalfa fields in Louodun and Fauquier.
Corn in all parts of the state continues to be damaged by various species of larvae. In addition, sap beetles are causing injury in some fields. Damage from the European corn borer is heavier than in recent years in Warren County.
An encouraging note is struck on truck crops in eastern Virginia, except for sap beetles in sweet corn and an increase in Mexican bean beetle adults.
The heaviest outbreak of spotted tentiform leafminers in years is reported in some apple orchards of Frederick County. European red mites are attacking apple foliage in northern Virginia. Although the infestation is classed as "medium" the mites are generally more numerous than usual at this time of year.
Tobacco farmers can look for the mid-summer brood of cigareete beetles and tobacco moths, which are expected to be emerging in a few days.

NITROGEN NEEDED ON PASTURES FOR HEAVIER FALL YIELDS

Nitrogen applied now or in early August will give pastures a much-needed boost for fall grazing or hay.
John F. Shoulders, associate agronomist at VPI, says applying 30 to 50 pounds of nitrogen to pastures will increase the amount of herbage when rains come, if enough phosphate and potash are present. If the pasture was topdressed last winter or spring with at least 500 pounds per acre of a recommended fertilizer, enough phosphate and potash likely will be present so nitrogen alone will give the desired results.
However, if the pasture has not been adequately topdressed with phosphorus and potash within the last year, it is advisable to use a complete fertilizer for more rapid growth.
This year, with a drouth of long standing, it is particularly important to apply additional nitrogen for fall growth. Many pastures have lost much of their legume stand, and weather conditions have been unfavorable for adequate fixing of nitrogen in the soil so far this season.
To prevent excessive burning, top dress when the pasture is dry and preferably after it has been clipped or grazed to a height of from 2 to 3 inches.

THREE NATIONAL PARKS IN DARE COUNTY, N. C. ATTRACT VISITORS

Manteo, N. C.- The "Birthplace of Virginia Dare," first child of English parentage born in America, the "birthplace of modern aviation," where the Wright Brothers flew first in a heavier than air powered machine on December 17, 1903, and "the graveyard of the Atlantic," the far-famed Cape Hatteras region where hundreds of ships have been lost through th years, are now National Park units attracting people from all over te country and the world.
They come to coast of Dare to visit Fort Raleigh, a National Historic Site, the spot where Virginia Dare was born, and where her parents and the little band of English men and women disappeared to become The Lost Colony. Last month more than 12,000 persons visited this shrine. The historic site is near Manteo on Roanoke Island.
During June, more than 25,000 persons visited the Wright Brothers National Monument at Kill Devil Hills near Kitty Hawk here on the Dare Coast. The monument and the reconstructed workshop and quarters building of the famous Wrights are located at the site of the first powered flight of an airplane. Last year almost 200,000 persons visited the suite duriqg the Golden Anniversary of Flight.
Third, and newest of the national park units of Dare is the Cape Hatteras Seashore Recreational Area. No accurate count is available for the number of persons who have visited the area since it was created to include all the lands (excepting the villages between Nags Head and Ocracoke Inlet. Tens of thousands of persons are coming to this first publicly owned oceanside recreational area this year. During the current fiscal year $270,000 has been allocated by the government for improving the facilities of the area for the public, which owns the area.

LOAF YOURSELF TO DEATH?

Chicago.- You are not as likely to work yourself to death as you are to loaf yourself to death, the National Safety Council sugested today.
"Accident Facts," the Council's statistical yearbook, just off the press, shows that off-the-job accidents killed 32,000 workers during 1953, while 15,000 were killed on the job.

GARDEN LOVERS TO COME TO VPI SHORT COURSE

Like gardening? Plan to attend the garden lovers' short course at VPI, August 2 - 5.
Albert S. Beecher, associate horticulturist at VPI, says anyone who's interested can come for classes in growing flowers, garden photography, and landscaping. Tours to the VPI arboretum and to nearby points of interest have also been arranged.
A. G. Smith, Jr., VPI horticulturist who was instrumental in organizing the first school in 1935, and who has directed it since, will be one of the instructors, as will Beecher and other members of the horticultural department. Howard E. Hammersley, Jr., photographer, the Roanoke Times, will teach the class in garden photography.
The short courses have been held every year since 1935, with the exception of a wartime-lapse of three years.
Registrations, with an attendant fee of $2.00, are preferred in advance. Rooms in the VPI dormitories will be $1.00 per person per night with two to each room. Meals in the VPI dining hall will be 60¢ each. Accomodations are available for married couples.
Those planning to attend are invited to send in any questions on gardening, and the questions will be answered in the session of Thursday morning, August 5.
All inquiries about the short course should be sent to Albert S. Beecher, horticucal department, VPI, Blacksburg.

BEST DRIVERS?

Chicago.- Who are the best drivers—men or women?
The ladies may be gratified to learn that the National Safety Council's statistical yearbook, "Accident Facts," just off the press, reveals that 10 times as many men as women drivers are involved in fatal accidents.
But just a minute, ladies! "Accident Facts" goes on to say that while 41,700 men and only 4,100 women were mixed up in fatal accidents last year, more than twice as many men were driving, they drove farther per driver, and they drove more in all kinds of weather and conditions than the women.
"So," the Council says with evident relief, "no one can really tell who's the best driver, a man or a woman."
